Situated on the outskirts of Ratnagiri, it surely may be a tranquil beach for a relaxed walk and romantic evenings. One can enjoy a panoramic view of the beautiful sunset.

Pandre Samudra
Pandre beach may be a long stretch of white sand and thus referred to as 'White beach.' it's a lustrous beach with beautiful palm groves within the backdrop and crystal clear water to dip in. It is a ethereal sight to be around.

Mandavi beach
Most crowded beach of Ratnagiri with a bird's eye view of Ratnadurg fort within the west and Arabian Sea to the south. It has a huge line of seashore upto Rajiwanda port. Due to its black sand, it's renowned as 'Black sea' and thus is filthier than other beaches yet it's one among the foremost wanted beaches in Ratnagiri because of its proximity to the town.

Gorai Beach
Located within the north suburb of Mumbai, 40 kms from the most city, Gorai Beach is one the cleanest, most tranquil and one among the foremost frequented beaches of Mumbai. Located near Bhayandar, on the Gorai Creek, the soothing calmness of this beach bordering the Arabian Sea, makes for an ideal leisure weekend vacation. Other than the umpteen food shacks and street food options available at the spot, the beach is also replete with resorts and beach houses. Other than the various water sports, camel rides, boat rides and fun picnics, you'll also rent one among these cottages to possess a quiet private time together with your friends and family.

Marve Beach
Away from the economic pollution and therefore the chaotic city life, Marve Beach is situated in Malad, within the western suburbs of Mumbai. Due to the strong tides and currents, it's generally not recommended to swim within the sea waters or maybe to step aside post evening hours. Lined by cashew nut trees and elite villas, the beach is a charming spot to spend some quiet time with your loved ones. Mostly frequented by couples owing to the romantic appeal and idyllic setting, the beach is also visited by college troupes and families occasionally. Inhabited by Catholic natives of Mumbai, Marve Beach will remind you of the beaches in Goa because of the attires and the mannerisms of the locals. To add to the beauty, the beach houses a tiny ancient Portuguese church which is popular amongst the tourists.

Versova Beach
A continuation of Juhu Beach towards the Andheri suburbs, Versova Beach is relatively less crowded and only separated by a creek from the previous beach. Versova is actually a fishing village inhabited by Kolis (fisherfolks) situated within the vicinity of the beach, and may be a hotbed for fish trade. The beach is rather small but is extremely popular for the humongous fish market and the fish auctions held at the spot on a daily basis. Separated by huge rock boulders to stay the village safe from the ocean waves and tides, the beach attracts tourists due to its natural beauty and surreal horizon views. The solitude attracts numerous professional photographers and shutterbugs, especially during dawn and dusk to capture the enchanting panorama and landscape vistas.

Aksa Beach
Located a touch on the outskirts of the town in Malad, Aksa Beach is an unparalleled oasis for a rejuvenating retreat from the hustle bustle of the town traffic. The mesmerising coastline is one among the longest within the city and offers a particularly vivid and surreal panorama of the merging horizon ahead. The beach remains untouched by the town crowds and hence maintains its natural charm aside from being immaculately clean. Known for its pristine and unblemished beauty, the beach is frequented by families and couples alike. The strong tides and currents keep shifting and hence, it is prohibited to go too far in the waters for a swim.

Dadar Chowpatty Beach
As the name suggests, Dadar Chowpatty Beach is situated in the Dadar suburbs of Mumbai. Majorly popular for the enormous view of the Bandra Worli Sea Link bridge, this beach is customarily used for jogging and watching beautiful sunsets. Located in South Bombay, the beach is frequented by residential locals coming for a night stroll, early morning yoga or to spend some leisure. The absence of shacks and eateries ward off the tourists a little bit. However, as of now, the beach also presents an unsightly picture because it has become a dump yard of local filth and a victim of city pollution. The government has been actively working for the renovation and beautification of Dadar Chowpatty.

Kalamb Beach
Located in Nalasopara in Thane district of Maharashtra, is that the really long and secluded Kalamb Beach. A paradise away from the din of the city, the beach is beautiful owing to its tranquility, serenity and an altogether mesmerising panorama. With only a few shacks and just the proper number of eateries, Kalamb Beach offers an exquisite vista of landscape and seascape. Hemmed with pretty palm trees, sprinkled with resorts and gracefully blessed with silken black sand; the beach is an absolute treat to just laze around in a hammock or sunbathe under the open skies. Connected fourth within the row after the Arnala Beach, Navapura Beach and Rajodi Beach, Kalamb Beach is relatively less crowded and is taken into account to be one among the foremost pollution free beaches altogether of Bombay.

Awas Beach
Located a touch on the outskirts of Alibaug, around 7 kms from Mandwa, Awas Beach may be a beautiful stretch of golden sands lined with casuarina and suru trees. A well kept secret of Alibaug, the beach rarely has visitors which suggests it's ideal for romantic getaways or to spend quality time in solitude. The village adjacent to the beach houses some beautiful resorts which are frequented by families and couples alike. Lack of tourism within the place also cause cleaner shores, quieter aesthetics and an overall gorgeous view.

Impact of Coastal Tourism in Indian coast
Coastal areas are transitional areas between the land and sea characterized by a really high biodiversity and that they include a number of the richest and most fragile ecosystems on earth, like mangroves and coral reefs. At an equivalent time, coasts are under very high population pressure thanks to rapid urbanization processes (Paul et al., 2017); (Noronha et al., 2002).

Positive Impact for Sustainable Coastal Tourism
a) Economic Benefit
The main Economic impact of Sustainable coastal tourism Development are:

1) Contribution to Government Revenues:
The coastal tourism provides both direct and indirect contribution to co Tourism development. Direct contributions are tax generation, Employment Opportunities. Indirect contributions are taxes on goods and services supplied to tourists (taxes on tickets, entry pass) and income generation through sales like Souvenirs, Alcohol, Restaurants, and Hotels etc.

2) Exchange Earnings: Tourism expenditures, the export and import of related goods and services generate income to the host economy. Tourism may be a main source of exchange earnings.
3) Employment Generation: the development of coastal tourism in India results in significant employment generation both directly and indirectly to skilled and unskilled coastal Karnataka peoples.

4) Infrastructure Development: Development of coastal tourism results in good infrastructure in coastal India by creating Better water and Sewage systems, roads, electricity, telephone and conveyance networks, green tourist police. of these can improve the quality of living for residents also as facilitate tourism.

5) Nature Protection: Tourism is revenue generating activity these revenue (park entrance fees, taxes, license fees for activities like hunting and fishing) support for conservation of natural resources.

b) Environmental Management and Planning Benefits Sound and efficient environmental management of tourism facilities and particularly hotels (e.g. water and energy saving measures, waste minimization and use of environmentally friendly material) can decrease the environmental impact of tourism. Planning helps to form choices between the conflicting interests of industry and tourism, so as to seek out ways to form them compatible. By planning sustainable tourism development strategy at an early stage, prevents damages and expensive mistakes, thereby avoiding the gradual deterioration of the standard of environmental goods and services significant to tourism.

c) Socio-Cultural Benefits
1) Tourism as a Force for Peace: Travelling brings people into contact with one another. As sustainable tourism has an academic element it can foster understanding between people and cultures and supply cultural exchange between guests and hosts. This increases the probabilities for people to develop mutual sympathy, tolerance and understanding and to scale back prejudices and promote the sense of worldwide brotherhood.

2) Strengthening Communities: Sustainable Coastal Tourism can add to the vitality of communities in many ways. For e.g. events and festivals of the local communities where they have been the primary participants and spectators. Often these are refreshed, reincarnated and developed in response to tourists’ interests. The jobs created by tourism can act as a really important motivation to scale back emigration from rural areas. Local people also can increase their influence on tourism development, also as improve their jobs and earnings prospects through tourism-related professional training and development of tourism and organizational skills.

d) Benefits for Sustainable Tourism
The benefits of sustainable tourism for visitors are plenty: they will enjoy unspoiled nature and landscapes, environmental quality of products or services (clean air and water), a healthy community with low rate , thriving and authentic local culture and traditions.

Negative Impact for Coastal Tourism
a) Damage Coastal Environment: Massive influxes of tourists, often to a relatively small area, have a huge impact. They increase the pollution, waste, and water needs of the local population, putting local infrastructure and habitats under enormous pressure.

b) Careless Resorts, Operators, and Tourists: The damage doesn't end with the construction of tourist infrastructure. Some tourist resorts empty their sewage and other wastes directly into water surrounding coral reefs and other sensitive marine habitat. Recreational activities also have a huge impact. For example, careless boating, diving, snorkelling, and fishing have substantially damaged coral reefs in many parts of the planet, through people touching reefs, stirring up sediment, and dropping anchors. Marine animals such as whale sharks, seals, dugongs, dolphins, whales, and birds are also disturbed by increased numbers of boats, and by people approaching too closely. Tourism also can increase the consumption of seafood in a neighborhood, putting pressure on local fish populations and sometimes contributing to overfishing. Collection of corals, shells, and other marine souvenirs - either by individual tourists, or local people that then sell the souvenirs to tourists - also features a detrimental effect on the local environment.

c) Cruise Ships & Floating Towns: The increased popularity of cruise ships has also adversely affected the marine environment.
Carrying up to 4,000 passengers and crew, these enormous floating towns are a serious source of marine pollution through the dumping of garbage and untreated sewage stumped, and the release of other shipping-related pollutants.

d) Environmental Impacts: Tourism can create great pressure on local resources such as energy, food, land and water that may already be in short supply. According to the Third Assessment of Europe’s environment (EEA, 2003), the direct local impacts of tourism on people and the environment at destinations are strongly affected by concentration in space and time (seasonality). They result from: intensive use of water and land by tourism and leisure facilities, the delivery and use of energy, changes within the landscape coming from the development of infrastructure, buildings, facilities, damage and destruction of vegetation.

e) Impacts on Biodiversity: Tourism can cause loss of biodiversity in many ways, e.g. by competing with wildlife for habitat and natural resources. More specifically, negative impacts on biodiversity can be caused by various factors:

1) Socio-Cultural Impacts: Change of local identity and values
2) Commercialization of Local Culture: Tourism can turn local culture into commodities when religious traditions, local customs and festivals are reduced to evolve to tourist expectations and leading to what has been called "reconstructed ethnicity".
3) Standardization: Destinations risk standardization within the process of tourists’ desires and satisfaction, while landscape, accommodation, food and drinks, etc., must meet the tourists expectation for the new and unfamiliar situation. They must at an equivalent time not be too new or strange because few tourists are literally trying to find completely new things. This factor damages the variation and wonder of diverse cultures.

Guidelines for Development of Sustainable Coastal Tourism in India

a) Coastal Environmental Management: Preparation of coastal resource management and conservation plans Industrial pollution control and environmental monitoring programme.

b) Mangrove Rehabilitation: The area under mangroves is getting reduced causing threat to the very survival of the mangrove species. Mangrove Rehabilitation and coastal plantation programs have been initiated by the Department of Forests, Environment and Ecology.

c) Marketing: While marketing, we can target various groups within the coastal tourism segment itself, like the young and adventurous, who would enjoy water sports, paragliding, etc. or tourists who would come to experience the serenity, calmness and exclusivity.

d) Infrastructure: It is most important that facilities and properties are developed in each location. Hence, a parallel activity for drawing investors and developers to set up projects in these areas have to be taken up, or else we will have large inflows into these locations with no capacity to service these tourists and therefore the entire exercise will end up to be negative. Water sports complex, development of Beach entrance plaza, etc. need to be undertaken. The other support activities such as construction of boat jetties, construction of fuelling stations, dredging, etc. need to be taken up by the concerned authorities.

e) Festivals: To ensure wider publicity for the beaches of India, it would perhaps make sense to organize some beach festivals at some of the coastal locations in the State. One way might be to carry a cultural/ literary/ art festival at one such location. This would attract those with creative bend of mind to the coastal shores and at the same time ensure wide publicity to beaches of the State.

f) Connectivity: Direct connectivity is the key to attracting more visitors to the coastal areas. Perhaps, it may not be possible to have air connectivity to all coastal locations. But train connectivity from some major centres can play a crucial role in increasing the inflow of tourists.

g) Maintaining the Environment: Whereas desiring to increase the amount of tourists to coastal destinations, efforts can ought to be at the same time created to confirm that coastal ecosystems ar protected in order that there’s no negative impact on lives of native population further as health of our ocean and also the creatures residing under that. ‘Environmental footprint’ of business enterprise is a crucial concern.

CONCLUSION
Tourism may be a major engine of economic process and a crucial supply of exchange earnings in several countries as well as India. it’s nice capability to make massive scale employment of various kind from the foremost specialised to the unskilled and thence will play a serious role in creation of further employment opportunities. business enterprise is mostly a brief break or short trip for pleasure, removed from home or work. In different words, it’s a brief travel for leisure, recreation, gets along or perhaps for a non secular purpose. throughout the last century, beaches have fully reversed their role: they need become the propulsion behind the economic welfare rather than simply being AN inhospitable place. However, the demographic pressure and also the overuse of the territory associated with those factors, within the rural area (dams within the rivers, farming and tourism) further as within the correct beach (sewage discharge, dry product extraction and crops) have caused a general decrease within the contribution of sediments to the beaches with a continental or a marine origin. It’s laborious to search out a singular resolution for all those issues. However, it ought to be fully essential to follow these points: initial, Integrated Coastal Zone Management; Second, an improved dissemination of the prevailing data ought to be achieved and Third, AN improvement of the environmental education is important for a property development of the coast.
